The University of Copenhagen’s six faculties have since 2013 offered Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs). It is our belief that the new technologies and rapid innovation within online learning will ultimately lead to better education — not just for the University’s many thousands of MOOC learners, but also for the students enrolled at the University of Copenhagen.

2020 - WHAT A MOOC-YEAR

In March 2020 the pandemic hit the world hard. The number of students enrolling in our courses more than doubled from February to March and the numbers continued to increase until the record in September.
